WHAT THE MEDIA SAID

Three main themes emerged:

1. Criminality & Moral Blame

“crack cocaine sparking wave of horror in UK drug capital where dealers hack off LEGS in sick feuds.”

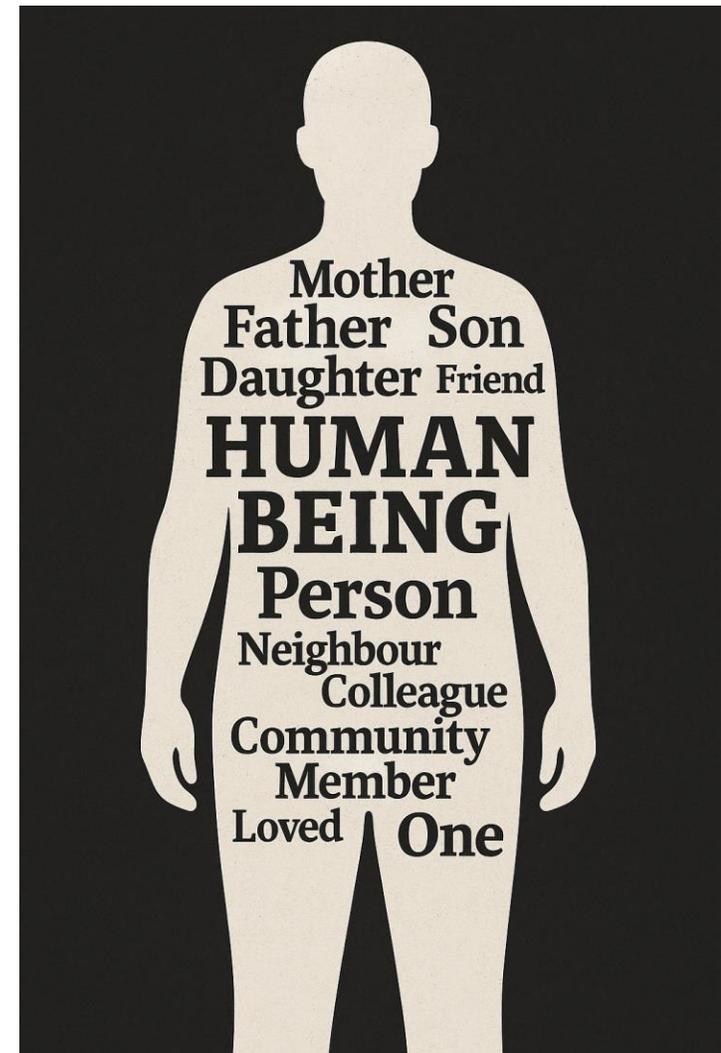

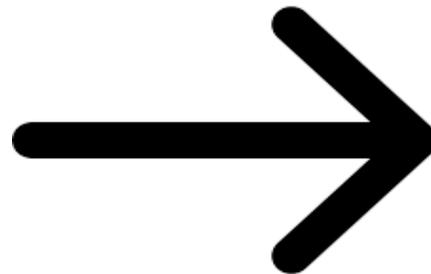

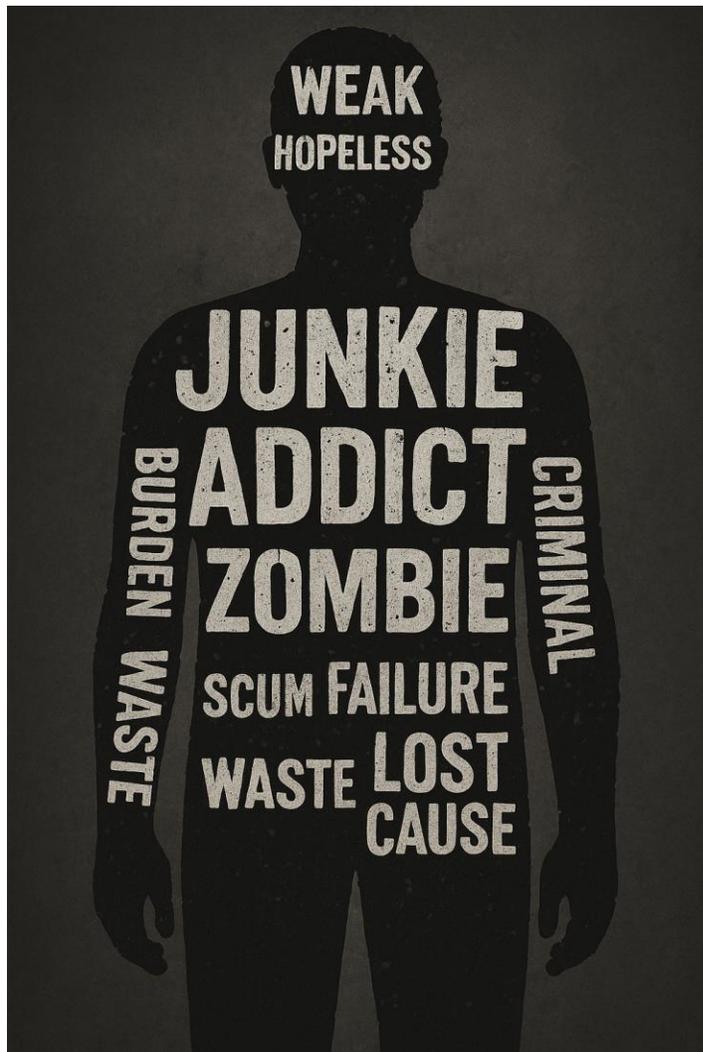

2. Dehumanising Language

“'Europe's drugs capital', with alleyways, car parks and bin stores taken over by hollow-eyed junkies.”

3. Silenced Voices

“Minister Warns on Rising Drug Deaths”

NEWSPAPER

I used drugs to cope with trauma. What I really needed was support, not punishment.

PRACTICAL STEPS FORWARD

Some steps we can take:

- Challenge harmful reporting - through complaints, media literacy, and public & political pressure.
- Embed media education - in schools, youth work, and recovery programmes, so the next generation can question what they're being told and why.
- Fund grassroots and recovery-led media - because stories told by those closest to the issue carry real power.
- Support and platform lived experience - in media, policy, and public & political spaces.
